Southern California University of Health Sciences Faculty Featured in Acupuncture Segment on CNN Headline News

Whittier CA, February, 2007: Southern California University of Health Sciences (SCU) faculty will be featured in a news segment on CNN Headline News highlighting the benefits of acupuncture. Faculty participating in the news segment include: San Hong Hwang, OMD; Jenny Yu, MSAOM; Leigh Caldwell, DOM; and Melissa Nagare DC, MAOM. In addition, recent SCU graduate Brett Guimard DC, MAOM discusses the education and training involved for a career in acupuncture.

The news segment is scheduled to be aired on CNN Headline News throughout the day on February 6 and 7 and will be available on demand at the Time Warner Cable website during the month of February. The segment will also be posted on the SCU website after it has aired.

"Many thanks go out to our outstanding practitioners, as well as Time Warner Southern California and CNN Headline News for making this segment happen. I am thrilled that we could to share our story of how acupuncture is part of the bright future of healing," says Len Rosenthal, Executive Director of Public Affairs for SCU. "I hope that our message is able to help all those people seeking solutions for their health, or searching for a fulfilling career in healthcare."

Hwang and Yu are Associate Professors, Caldwell is an Assistant Professor, and Nagare is an Instructor at the College of Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine at SCU.

Southern California University of Health Sciences incorporates the College of Acupuncture and Oriental Medicine, the Los Angeles College of Chiropractic, the School of Professional Studies, and the University Health Centers.
